

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention comprises a transdermal drug delivery device for delivering a pharmaceutically active agent comprising a reservoir comprising a releasably stored
5 dosage of the pharmaceutically active agent and a substantially continuous, translucent inorganic barrier layer adjacent to at least a portion of the reservoir. The present invention also comprises a method of drug delivery to a mammal using such devices.